Food Stamp Program

State Options Report 2nd Edition, February 2003

Food Stamp Program (FSP) statutes and regulations provide State agencies with numerous policy options. State agencies use this flexibility to improve how the program works in meeting the nutritional needs of low-income people across the nation. Choosing certain options can facilitate program design goals such as removing or reducing barriers to access and sustained participation for low-income families and individuals, providing better support for those working or looking for work, targeting benefits to those most in need, streamlining administration and field operations, and coordinating FSP activities with those of other programs. With passage of the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002, the array of policy options was significantly expanded in several key areas. Consequently, this second edition of the State Options Report profiles a total of 29 different options and waivers, six more than the first edition from April 2002.

The earliest effective date by which interested State agencies could implement the additional options from the Farm Bill was October 2002. The Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) intermittently surveys State agencies administering the Food Stamp Program to determine which policy options are in use. Information about State agency choices among policy options is subject to frequent change. This report catalogs choices in effect as of February 2003. Several States have plans to implement various options at later dates. Those choices will be reflected in future editions of this report.

The first section of the report describes the options and lists the States that have selected each of them. The new options presented here from the Farm Bill are denoted with the Farm Bill logo. Information is shown in tabular and map formats. Due to limitations of the mapping program used, Guam and the Virgin Islands are not included in the geographical displays. See the map legends for information on these territories. The second section lists the States in alphabetical order and shows the status of each State agency in relation to each policy option. Please contact Deborah Slater (703-305-2766) or John Knaus (703-305-2098) with questions, corrections, or suggestions about this edition of the State Options Report.

OPTION PROFILES

Reporting Requirements

State agencies have the option of requiring food stamp recipients to report on their financial circumstances at various intervals and in various ways. They can institute a type of periodic reporting system or they can rely on households to report changes within 10 days of occurrence—known as “incident reporting.” The table below shows States that have chosen periodic reporting. Participants report either quarterly or monthly--or under a “simplified” system with reduced reporting requirements. Under the simplified reporting option, households are required to report changes in income between certification and scheduled reporting periods only when total countable income rises above 130 percent of the poverty level. States implementing simplified reporting can set reporting intervals or certification periods at four, five, or six months.

Simplified Reporting Expansion

Prior to passage of the Farm Bill, the FSP contained the option to use a reporting system with reduced reporting requirements for earned income households on a semi-annual schedule. With passage of the Farm Bill's Simplified Reporting option, States can expand their reporting systems for earned income households to any and all households that can be asked to report periodically. Of the 26 States currently using Simplified Reporting, 13 have expanded it beyond earned income households. In between certification and scheduled reporting periods, a household's monthly benefit amount is not decreased as long as total income is less than 130 percent of the poverty level. States can request a waiver that will allow them to reduce benefits on the basis of change information affecting eligibility and benefit levels in other programs. This waiver has been given to 15 of the 26 States with Simplified Reporting systems.

Change Reporting Waivers

States can request waivers from incident or change reporting rules to lessen the reporting burden on households and the workload of field staff. Common earned income waivers involve requiring households to report only when a member changes jobs, receives a different rate of pay, or has a change in his or her work status, i.e., from full time to part time or vice versa. Other waivers State agencies have received require households to report only when there is a change of five or more hours per week in the work schedule or when there is a change in earnings of $100 or more per month. Waivers are also granted to help States deal efficiently with unearned income. One such waiver allows households to report only when there has been a change in unearned income from private sources of $100 or more per month. Another allows agencies to average unearned income from private sources, for example alimony or child support, over a 12-month period. Use of reporting waivers is expected to decrease as more State agencies take full advantage of simplified reporting; however, the total number of waivers in effect has actually increased by three since the last report.

Transitional Benefits

This is an option available to States to help support families as they move off Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) cash assistance. Benefits can be continued for up to five months in an amount equal to the amount received by the household prior to TANF termination with adjustments for loss of TANF income. Certification periods can be extended through the last transitional month. Only one State, New York, had been offering the pre-Farm Bill version of Transitional Benefits to families coming off of welfare. Now five other States have chosen to provide this work support. All six States have elected to issue benefits to welfare leavers for the full five months allowed in the legislation. Four have indicated they will extend certification periods to complete the transition. Half have designated more types of TANF households that cannot be included in addition to the types excluded from participation by law.

Simplified Definitions of Income and Resources

State agencies now have the option to exclude additional types of income and resources by aligning food stamp policy with TANF or Medicaid policy. Any income not counted under Section 1931 of Medicaid or TANF can be excluded with some exceptions. The exceptions are wages, salaries, benefits from major assistance programs, regular payments from a government source, worker's compensation, child support payments, and other types determined countable to insure fairness in eligibility determinations. The same option exists for the treatment of resources. The ones that cannot be excluded when using this particular option are cash, licensed vehicles, and readily available amounts in financial institutions--plus anything determined essential to count by FNS for basic fairness.

Vehicle Policy

States have the option of substituting the vehicle rules used in their TANF assistance programs for FSP vehicle rules when it results in a lower attribution of household assets. Some States provide non-cash assistance funded with TANF or TANF Maintenance of Effort (MOE) money to confer categorical eligibility upon a larger number of households as long as gross income does not exceed 200% of poverty. Forty-four States are currently using more generous vehicle rules, compared to 40 in April 2002.

The alternative rules used have allowed 21 States to exclude the value of all vehicles entirely. Of the remaining 23 States not using FSP rules, 17 totally exclude the value of at least one vehicle per household. The other six exempt an amount higher than the FSP's standard auto exemption (currently set at $4,650) from the fair market value to determine the countable resource value of a vehicle.

Expanded Categorical Eligibility

Expanding categorical eligibility for food stamp benefits is advantageous for more than dealing with vehicles. It can simplify eligibility determination by eliminating the requirement for other asset valuation and the application of the resource test. Households where all members benefit from means-tested cash assistance programs are categorically eligible for food stamps--as are those receiving means-tested non-cash benefits if the program involved is funded with over 50 percent TANF or MOE money. State agencies then have the option to expand this designation to households receiving a non-cash benefit from programs wherein less than 50 percent of the funding comes from TANF or MOE sources as long as the household's gross income does not exceed 200 percent of the poverty level. Although a majority has expanded categorical eligibility, the number of States is down to 41 from the 44 shown in the first edition of this report.

Simplified Standard Utility Allowance (SUA)

State agencies electing to use the SUA for all households in place of actual utility costs can adopt the simplified SUA. This eliminates the requirement to prorate the SUA among households share living space, and it allows public housing residents with shared meters charged for only excess utility costs to have the benefit of the SUA as a deduction from income. All areas except the Virgin Islands use a Standard Utility Allowance. Most have not made it mandatory for all qualifying households. Of the 19 that have, 16 have taken advantage of the simplified SUA option.

Simplified Determination of Deductions

In order to streamline case handling procedures and lessen vulnerability to payment errors for minor discrepancies, States can elect to disregard changes in certain deduction amounts during certification periods. The deductions affected are the ones for child care expenses, child support payments made, medical expenses, and shelter costs at the same residence.

State Option Food Stamp Program for Immigrants

The Supplemental Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 1997 included authority for States to purchase food stamps from the Federal government for use in a State-funded food assistance program for legal immigrants. This development was in response to the limitations on immigrant eligibility for the Federal FSP contained in the 1996 welfare reform act. States design the eligibility requirements for their programs. Some States have chosen not to purchase food stamp benefits from FNS for their program participants. They handle benefit issuance and redemption activities independently. As the different eligibility provisions for different groups of immigrants are phased in for the legislated effective dates in the Farm Bill, the State programs are expected to diminish in size. In the interim, they provide continuity in nutritional support for needy immigrant families and individuals. Once the last immigrant restoration provision goes into effect in October 2003, States may opt to continue these programs to serve legal immigrant adults ineligible for the Federal FSP during their first five years in residence.

Simplified Food Stamp Program for TANF Households

States may use TANF or FSP rules, or a combination of both, to create Simplified Food Stamp Programs for TANF households. With FNS approval, States can design Simplified Programs to include households where not all members must be TANF recipients.

Currently nine States are operating limited or “mini” Simplified Programs, which means program rules have been altered from the regular FSP in the area of work requirements only. In such programs, the value of the TANF benefit and the food stamp allotment are combined to determine a work obligation satisfying the requirements of both programs.

Wage Supplementation

Employment & Training Pledge States

Currently 20 States have “pledged” to offer every applicant or recipient Able-Bodied Adult without Dependents (ABAWD) subject to the three-month time limit on participation a qualifying education, training, or workfare opportunity. If the client fulfills the requirements of his or her education, training, or workfare component, he or she can continue to receive benefits. States are authorized to pay for creating these opportunities without regard to the current maximum allowable rates. These 20 States receive a share of the $20 million set aside in the Farm Bill. Four more States than before have become pledge states.

Employment & Training Sanction Periods

Individuals who are required to register for work in order to receive benefits may be enrolled into a State's E&T program to receive assistance preparing for and finding employment. If they fail to participate in planned E&T activities without good cause, they are disqualified from the FSP for certain periods of time depending on how many prior instances of non-compliance there have been. The minimum periods set by law are one month for the first instance, three months for the second, and six months for the third. Food stamp policy gives States the options to 1) set disqualification periods longer than these minimum mandatory periods, 2) for the third occurrence, make the disqualification permanent, and 3) sanction the entire household whenever the head of household fails to comply with E&T program requirements. For information on the exact length of extended sanction periods in each State choosing to extend them, see the State Profiles section of this report.

Drug Felony Disqualification

Welfare reform legislation permanently disqualifies people from FSP participation if they have been convicted of a state or federal felony offense involving the use or sale of drugs. State legislatures can opt out of the penalty entirely or choose to impose less severe restrictions. Examples of these modified approaches are 1) limiting the circumstances in which permanent disqualification applies--such as only when convictions involve the sale of drugs, 2) requiring the person convicted to submit to drug testing, 3) requiring participation in a drug treatment program, and/or 4) imposing a temporary disqualification period.
